Charles Walter replanted 16 A of corn with a corn jabber in a day, received a scratch which developed into blood poison and died Aug 1895 when Irl was 5 years and Walter 3 years. Walter Sr. was quite sick and living in the small converted school house at the foot of the hill. Irl was at grandfather's when Walter asked for Irl. Irl was stood beside his father's bed. Irl remembers his father putting his hand on his head and saying "God bless you, Little Man," turned over and died.

Irl also remembers playing in the attic space under the roof at grandfather's and accidentally stepping into a large jar of maple syrup. Grandma washed him up and grandfather spanked him. Next morn, mother, Irl and Walter were at grandpa's to pick cherries. Grandpa tried to talk with Irl but Irl remembered the spanking and tried to spit in his face.
